

LEGISLATIVE DEFINITIONS AROUND LEARNERS VULNERABLE TO EXCLUSION

Country Report: Austria

The European Agency for Special Needs and Inclusive Education (the Agency) is an independent and self-governing organisation. The Agency is co-funded by the ministries of education in its member countries and by the European Commission via an operating grant within the European Union (EU) education programme.

INTRODUCTION

Since the foundation of the European Agency for Special Needs and Inclusive Education (the Agency) in 1996, there have been key conceptual changes in the thinking behind and policy priorities for developments on the journey towards inclusive education.

A first shift was from the concept of special educational needs (SEN) to special needs education (SNE). This represented a move away from focusing on the learner (special educational needs), towards a focus on the provision that learners who experience difficulties at school may need (special needs education). The term 'special needs education' widened the focus beyond learners with disabilities to include learners who appeared to be failing in school for a wide variety of reasons – for example, children living in poverty or those from different linguistic or cultural backgrounds. Special needs education, however, continued the deficit or medical model that still saw the problems as being within the learner.

There has never been an agreed definition of SEN or SNE that could be used across countries. The groups of learners considered to have special needs requiring additional provision largely differ across countries.

Inclusion requires a move away from a concern with the categories a learner may or may not fall into, to focus on the barriers some learners experience that lead to marginalisation and exclusion. This leads to an overall focus on learners vulnerable to exclusion by the education system. Agency work focuses on supporting the development of inclusive education systems in its member countries to ensure every learner's right to inclusive and equitable educational opportunities. This aim is directed at all learners, while recognising the need to specifically address specific learners vulnerable to exclusion.

Agency work acknowledges that every learner has their own unique experiences of discrimination and/or barriers to learning. All aspects of Agency work aim to consider everything and anything that can marginalise learners and increase their chances of exclusion (European Agency, 2021¹). This requires a move away from a medical approach and labelling with separate provision for different groups, towards a rights-based approach that focuses on the barriers within the system (European Agency, 2022a).

Central to this commitment and understanding of inclusive education are the legal definitions or descriptions in policy that Agency member countries use to identify and potentially label learners to make additional provision and resources available for them based on their needs.

The Agency also acknowledges the growing need to take account of intersectionality – the interconnected nature of all social categorisations – when considering the needs of all learners. Intersectionality is the understanding that a person, group of people, organisation or social problem is affected and impacted upon by a number of pressures, forces, levers, discriminations and disadvantages. It considers everything and anything that can marginalise learners and increase their chances of exclusion. This includes, but is not limited to:

... gender, remoteness, wealth, disability, ethnicity, language, migration, displacement, incarceration, sexual orientation, gender identity and expression, religion and other beliefs and attitudes (UNESCO, 2020, p. 4).

The Agency's current Multi-Annual Work Programme (2021–2027) highlights the concept of intersectionality.

The Legislative Definitions around Learners Vulnerable to Exclusion activity

Legislative Definitions around Learners Vulnerable to Exclusion aimed to collect information from Agency member countries focusing on legislative definitions around learners vulnerable to exclusion in education systems. It collected evidence to indicate where countries currently stand regarding the definition of and approach to learner groups and risk factors within inclusive education systems. There was a particular focus on legislative definitions and descriptions around a broad vision of inclusive education for all learners.

Specifically, the activity examined how Agency member countries legally define and describe learners' needs in terms of considering them as groups of learners with special needs or learners vulnerable to exclusion. It also considered how anti-discrimination legislation and legislation for inclusive education define and/or describe learners' needs, and explored the concept of intersectionality.

In the activity, the term 'learners' needs' is understood as a way to highlight a requirement for educational provision and/or support without applying a label based on an external factor that in some way describes or impacts upon an individual or group of learners. Using the non-categorical term 'learners' needs' would be an ideal approach for countries to take and is in line with the Agency position on inclusive education systems (European Agency, 2022b).

The reality – as evidenced by analysing countries' legislative definitions or descriptions in policy around learners' needs – clearly indicates that legislation and policy documents describe learners' needs with less of a focus on learner requirements for provision and support, and more on externally generated labels that identify groups of learner characteristics.

The activity uses the terms 'categories of groups of learners' and 'groups of learners'. They refer to the groups of learners identified through the analysis conducted in this activity. However, it must be made clear that references to categories of groups of learners do not in any way endorse or promote the labelling of learners. The term 'groups of learners' has been applied as a way of investigating where and how country legislation and policy make distinctions between different groups of learners who may be vulnerable to exclusion.

As with the journey towards inclusive education, legal definitions may be developing towards learners vulnerable to exclusion and the consideration of intersectionality. Therefore, to respect the context of all countries, information on special needs categories is considered, as well as definitions considering all learners.

Please refer to the Legislative Definitions around Learners' Needs – Policy Brief for more information about the activity.

How the country reports were prepared

Agency team members compiled evidence from 35 Agency member countries.

Agency team members collected the information in this country report from Agency reports, the country information pages and Eurydice sources. The extracts focus on identifying legal definitions around learners vulnerable to exclusion. They do not cover the different forms of provision for these learners. However, it is recognised that in some cases there may be operational definitions rather than legal definitions.

The extracts are considered evidence of a legal definition and are included if they explain how a term is understood within legislation and policy. In some cases, there may not be an extract that provides this information; however, the legal documents provide indirect evidence that a legal definition may exist. Where this indirect evidence was found, it has been included.

It is to be expected that there may not be information available in response to every question, as country contexts differ and each country is at a different stage on the journey to develop inclusive education. Therefore, a wide range of questions was selected to allow evidence to be collected from every Agency member country.

Each of the first three sections begins by clarifying key terminology.

This report includes three sections with information that the Agency team compiled:

1. Legal definitions of special needs
2. Legal definitions of learners vulnerable to exclusion
3. Legal definitions of inclusive education.

Section 4 contains additional questions that country representatives could choose to answer. Country representatives also had the option to review and amend sections 1–3.

The completed country reports served to identify trends within and across countries on legal definitions related to learners vulnerable to exclusion. The activity report, Legislative Definitions around Learners' Needs: A snapshot of European country approaches, explains how the country reports were used for the analysis and presents the findings.

LEGISLATIVE DEFINITIONS AROUND LEARNERS' NEEDS IN AUSTRIA

1. Legal definition of special needs

A learner with special needs is understood as a learner who:

... for a wide variety of reasons, require[s] additional support and adaptive pedagogical methods in order to participate and meet learning objectives in an education programme. Reasons may include (but are not limited to) disadvantages in physical, behavioural, intellectual, emotional and social capacities (UNESCO Institute for Statistics, 2012, p. 83).

1.1 There is a legal definition of special needs

Evidence

Disability is the effect of a physical, intellectual, psychological or sensory functional impairment which is not temporary and which makes participation in community life more difficult. An impairment is not considered temporary if its duration is more than six months.

Special educational needs can be categorised as follows:

- Sensory impairment
- Speech impairment
- Movement-related
- Learning impairment
- Combinations of impairments.

§ 3 of the Federal Law on the Equalisation of Persons with Disabilities in Society (European Agency Statistics on Inclusive Education background information)

1.2 The legal definition of special needs is found in laws and policies

Evidence

Different learner groups are addressed across different policies (see 1.4), according to § 3 of the Federal Law on the Equalisation of Persons with Disabilities in Society.

1.3 The legal definition of special needs is found in strategies and programmes

Evidence

The term 'special needs' is not currently used in legal regulations. The term 'specific needs' is seen more recently in governmental documents. However, Austria uses the term 'Sonderpädagogischer Förderbedarf', which might be translated as 'need for special education coaching and support'. This term is defined by law (§ 8 Abs. 1 Schulpflichtgesetz, 1985).

1.4a Does your country's legal definition of special needs specify particular groups of learners?

Yes.

1.4b Which specific learner groups does the legal definition of special needs address?

Specific learner groups	Evidence
Learners with special educational needs	Compulsory School Act – Schulpflichtgesetz Country information
Learners with disabilities	School Organisation Act Country information § 8 of the Compulsory Education Law EASIE background information
Learners with physical or mental disabilities	This category is included in (§ 8 Abs. 1 Schulpflichtgesetz 1985) Country information

2. Learners legally considered vulnerable to exclusion from education

Within this document, the term learners vulnerable to exclusion encompasses all learners whose educational experience is 'impacted upon by a number of pressures, forces, levers, discriminations and disadvantages' (European Agency, 2021, p. 6). These learners may or may not fall into categories of special needs and a special type of provision may or may not be available to support them.

Although there may not be an official definition of learners vulnerable to exclusion, learner groups which are addressed in different legal documents as receiving support and not identified as learners with special needs are listed here.

2.1 There is a legal definition of learners vulnerable to exclusion from education

2.3 The legal definition of learners vulnerable to exclusion from education is found in strategies and programmes

Evidence

No information.

2.4a Do your country's legislation, policies or strategies specify particular groups of learners?

Yes.

2.4b Which specific learner groups are legally considered to be vulnerable to exclusion from education across legislation, policies or strategies?

Specific learner groups	Evidence
Children and youths of compulsory schooling age who do not possess adequate German language skills are obligated to attend German language support classes or German language support courses.	2018 School Organisation Act (Schulorganisationsgesetz 2018) Federal Law Gazette No. 35/2018 European Semester – National Reform Programme
In most Austrian provinces, children who have been classified as 'presenting or in danger of developing' disabilities receive early intervention. Early intervention can also be sought through the Youth Welfare Act, in cases where the family environment may harm the child's development (e.g. drug abuse, violence, neglect). 2.5a Does anti-discrimination and equal rights legislation address different learner groups in the education system?

Yes.

2.5b Which specific learner groups are listed in anti-discrimination and equal rights legislation?

Specific learner groups	Evidence
Laws deal with equal opportunities in terms of school education and professional integration of disabled people.	Federal Disability Act (Bundesbehindertengesetz) Disabled Persons Employment Act (Behinderteneinstellungsgesetz) Eurydice

3. Legal definition of inclusive education

The Agency views inclusive education as:

... a systemic approach to providing high quality education in mainstream schools that effectively meets the academic and social learning needs of all the learners from the school's local community (European Agency, 2015, p. 2).

In inclusive education:

Learners are placed at the centre of a system that needs to be able to recognise, accept and respond to learner diversity. Inclusive education aims to respond to the principles of efficiency, equality and equity, where diversity is perceived as an asset. Learners also need to be prepared to engage in society, to access meaningful citizenship and to acknowledge the values of human rights, freedom, tolerance and non-discrimination (Soriano, Watkins and Ebersold, 2017, p. 6).

3.1 There is a legal definition of inclusive education

Evidence

A national legal definition does not exist.

In 2021, the Ministry of Education published a strategy document on inclusive and special education for the first time. This is a basic document used for developing the chapter on education, science and research in the upcoming national action plan related to the implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities.

3.2 The legal definition of inclusive education is found in laws and policies

Evidence

No information.

3.3 The legal definition of inclusive education is found in strategies and programmes

Evidence

No information.

3.4 Do legal documents related to inclusive education refer to all learners, specific learner groups, or both all learners and specific learner groups?

Not applicable.

4. Additional questions

4.1 Are there other specific learner groups that receive additional support within the education system that have not been accounted for in this document? If yes, which legal documents (legislation, policies or strategies) address them?

For some long-time established ethnic groups.

4.2a Is the term or concept of ‘intersectionality’ mentioned in legislation?

No.

It is not mentioned in legal regulations, but is in public documents. It is expected to be mentioned in the new national action plan.

4.2b Share details on how the concept is mentioned in the legislation

No information.

4.3a Are there any proposals/plans for changes in legislation focused on learners vulnerable to exclusion?

No information.

4.3b What proposals or plans exist for changes in legislation focused on learners vulnerable to exclusion?

No information.

4.4 Do you have any further comments?

No information.
